

The City's SOCIAL LIFE

Events, Gayeties and Personal Activities of the Week

The Girl to Wed.

Here's to the gay and witty girl,
The girl who is full of fun;
Whose eyes are bright as a shaft of light,
And whose smile is a ray of the sun.
She doesn't care for the rip and tear
Of the daily round of life—
And though she's great you'd hesitate
To make this girl your wife.

Here's to the staid and solemn girl,
Who at you will often frown;
Whose words are so wise that they cause surprise,
And whose heart is true, but it makes you blue,
And oftentimes afraid;
So some bad luck you might get stuck
And wed this mournful maid.

Here's to the cute and dainty girl,
With manner so petite;
Her way isn't loud, but she gets the crowd
As she trips down the street.
So let each sing with joyful ring
Of the girl with the bright eyes,
I'd marry now if she knew how
To make good pumpkin pies.

Three Great Events.

"There are three great events in a woman's life: these are her graduation, her engagement and her marriage," declares Chauncey M. Dewey, in the Detroit Free Press. Then he dropped a hint that would be very valuable to women if it admitted practical application in their case.

"Life is not all serious, and it is not all work. I believe in fun. Why, I am here tonight as young and gay and healthy as any of you, because I have got out of life all the fun there is in it."

Fun—the more the joy of living—how is it to be included in the calculations of the woman who is the sweet girl graduate becomes? We know ourselves, alas! we women of the times. To be merry—glad we're living—how can we? We have a mother's meeting at 9 a. m. to prove what's a very with mothers and their children. At 10 we go into the slums to wrench our hearts, soil our hands and, but for force of intellect, despair, striving to make life and light out of the humanity of the submerged. The afternoon we have a meeting where papers read convincingly demonstrate that woman is doomed to injustice from the start and that all we get on earth we shall have by fighting grimly. So it goes from morning till dewy eve, and through the night our sleep is troubled with the thought of all the burden that falls on us. It is very well for a man to talk of the wisdom of fun. But let him try being a woman to-day. Let him know all she knows, and try to do all that her conscience demands of her. Then he will see how true it is that living is very serious business.

About Perfumes.

Perfumes are put in tablet form nowadays. A lady simply orders a dozen or more at a time, and proceeds to distribute them about in her pockets, her purse, or within the palms of her gloves, says the London Express. They come in two sizes. It is unquestionably a very convenient way of investing one's self with delicate flower scents. Dropping one or more without toilet boxes and drawers, they afford a fragrance equal in strength to an ordinary ounce sachet bag, which is bulky and likely to be in one's way. They come in just one odor—the violet—and are quite the rage this year. They may be tucked into so cleverly within loops of ribbons or bunches of flowers.

Nearly every girl has one hidden in her purse and concealed within the folds of her tie. The beauty of them is that the delicate fragrance is not so fleeting as in other forms of perfume. They are, oh, joy of joys! they cost only 2 shillings a dozen.

The Bride's Cake.

Great importance is always attached to the bride's cake on the occasion of a wedding, and it is usually accorded a distinct place of honor in the marriage festivities, says a writer in an Eastern paper. The bride herself takes no small amount of interest in this emblem of her nuptials, and undoubtedly keenly appreciates the task of cutting up the cake after the wedding ceremony and dispatching small portions, in the fancy pasteboard boxes with the orthodox silver-edged card, to her friends and relatives.

In the designing and choosing of artistic wedding cake boxes all showy effects should be discouraged and simple elegance aimed at. The boxes may be mounted in either fancy embossed paper, rich watered or plain silks or satins. The silver or gold lined monogram of the bride and groom and the pretty bow of suitably colored ribbon always impart a very effective appearance to even an ordinary cardboard box.
